for rice production in Colombia"

Biologist. M.Sc. in Conservation and Use of Biodiversity.

Researcher of Calidris, association for the study and conservation of waterfowl in Colombia. She has worked on the trophic ecology of shorebirds present in rice crops. She has nine years of experience in research and conservation of waterfowl and Passeriformes in Colombia. Since 2008 she coordinates the Neotropical Waterbirds Census in Colombia and since 2009 the "Las Alas del Arroz" initiative that is aimed to involve rice farmers in the biodiversity conservation and foster promoting best management practices that benefit birds and farmers. Through this initiative seeks to promote the green seal "Arroz Amigo de las Aves", establishing channels and research with the agro-industrial sector to expand the commercialization of organic rice with added value.
